Vehicle crash claims life of one

A two-vehicle crash on Highway 412 has claimed the life of a 23-year-old who was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident. The identity is being withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Local dispatchers received the call at 4:09 a.m. reporting that two vehicles were involved. Crockett County deputies arrived on scene first and attempted to extinguish the post-crash fire while other deputies rescued three patients to safety. Two Air-Evac helicopters were called to respond and transport two critical patients to the trauma center. A third patient was transported by CCAS by ground to a local hospital.

According to the Sheriff's Department there was alcohol paraphernalia observed strewn about the scene.

Alamo Police Dept., Crockett County Rescue Squad, Gadsden Fire Dept., Alamo Fire Dept., Crockett County EMS, Crockett County EMA, Air-Evac Lifeteam, THP, and the Crockett County Medical

Examiner's Office all responded to the scene. This crash is being investigated by the Tennessee Highway Patrol and CIRT.

In a totally separate incident earlier around 11 p.m., deputies intercepted a vehicle going 87 mph in a 65 mph zone on Highway 412. There were five occupants in the vehicle. Officers recovered five cases of Smirnoff an a bottle of Tito's. It is illegal to release the names of juveniles involved in this type of incident. There were no injuries.

April is Child Abuse Prevention Month

All Tennesseans have a role to play in preventing child abuse, and the Department of Children's Services joins its partners across the state — including private providers, local and state agencies, non-profit organizations, and houses of worship — to remind our communities and neighborhoods to help keep children safe.

“Preventing child abuse is everyone's responsibility and as we learned over the past year, it is so important to pay close attention to the children that touch our lives and report any suspicions of abuse or neglect,” Commissioner Jennifer Nichols said.

Remember that all Tennesseans are mandated reporters. State law requires everyone to report knowledge or suspicions of child abuse or neglect. The Tennessee Child Abuse Hotline number is 877-237-0004. Citizens can also make a report online: <https://apps.tn.gov/carat/>

“Prevention is key, so we must continue to support families before they reach a crisis. By building strong, healthy, and empowered families, we can help ensure the safety and well-being of children,” Nichols added.

Across the state, DCS staff and our providers offer prevention and in-home services to support families. These include Community-Based Child Abuse Prevention programs and Resource Linkage staff who focus on families whose children are at risk of coming into state care. The department has also developed a Family Resource Guide to connect families to the community services they may need.

In honor of Child Abuse Prevention Month, 11 Tennessee landmarks heighten awareness by lighting up blue, including these sites in Nashville:

- The State Capitol
- Korean War Veterans Memorial Bridge
- Ascend Amphitheater
- Bicentennial Mall Amphitheater
- AT&T Building
- Adventure Science Center
- Bridgestone Arena
- Others across the state:
 - Liberty Bowl Memorial Stadium, Memphis
 - Eiffel Tower, Paris
 - Tennessee Aquarium, Chattanooga
 - R. J. Corman Bridge, Clarksville

Nurses Honor Guard offers tribute to colleagues

From Tammy Carter, RN WTNHG President

In 2022, a group of West Tennessee nurses recognized an unfulfilled need in the nursing community. As nurse honor guard chapters were being established across the state and nation, there was no such group that covered West Tennessee other than the “Final Farewell” offered by Henry County Medical Center to its affiliated nurses.

To fill this need the West Tennessee Nurses Honor

Guard (WTNHG) officially was established on Jan. 1, 2023 to serve the counties of Benton, Carroll, Crockett, Dyer, Fayette, Gibson, Hardeman, Haywood, Lake, Lauderdale, Madison, Obion, Shelby, and Tipton. As needed the WTNHG also will serve in adjacent counties such as Humphreys. Other chapters such as the Tennessee River City and UTM Department of Nursing have since developed their own distinct coverage areas. There is an agreement among these chapters for mutual assistance when needed. The mission of the WTNHG is to honor the life and service of nurses who have dedicated their careers to the field of nursing. This honor is bestowed by performing the Nightingale Tribute at the time of death. Wearing historical attire including a white uniform, blue cape, and white nursing cap, chapter members perform a service lasting approximately five minutes.

Cicada song – the awakening

PEEPLER

Circuit Court Judge
Crockett, Gibson, &
Haywood Counties

A television personality on “The View” made headlines last week when she speculated, stupidly, that last Monday’s eclipse of the sun, the New York earthquake, and the predicted emergence of two separate broods of periodical cicadas might have been caused by global warming.

Apparently, she had been watching the news, and our national media, probably in order to gin up viewers, is treating the event as a real invasion. I’m betting the woman making the ridiculous statement was reacting to stories of billions, and in some reports “trillions,” of cicadas invading the country this spring. That’s what dozens of news articles said, and dramatically pointed out that two different broods, one emerging from the ground next month after 13 years, and the other after 17 years, will be rising from the earth at virtually the same time.

Some articles have treated the “invasion” as a tourist attraction and have discussed where to go to “see the cicadas,” but others have posted alarming news accounts using terms like “cicadageddon” or “cicadapocalypse,” and posted headlines like, “US Braces for Cicadas by the Trillions,” so if you don’t know anything about cicadas it’s natural to be concerned, if not fearful that we are about to witness something akin to locusts rising from the smoke in the bottomless pit described to us in the Book of Revelation. One overheated newspaper writer said that they, the cicadas, “. . . will dig their way out from underground, red eyes shining, deafening song filling the air. It will be a confluence of creatures the likes of which haven’t been seen in the United States since Thomas Jefferson was president.”

Sorry, but this invasion has been grossly overhyped. First, it’s not going to happen at all in most parts of the country, West Tennessee included, and even where it is, it’s not much of a problem at all.

Contrary to what you might have read, cicadas do not sting, they don’t bite, and they won’t chew up your garden. They won’t chew on anything, because they don’t have teeth. All they will do is suck sap out of trees and roots, and not much of that.

Part of the confusion over them is that many people confuse cicadas with locusts. Locusts really are bad guys and can be a serious problem, but the two are actually different species of insects whose main similarities are that they both fly and make buzzing noises. Locusts are actually grasshoppers and can swarm and devastate crops, but cicadas never do that. Cicadas are actually beneficial in many ways. For example, as they die, and all will within 4 to 6 weeks, they make a great nitrogen fertilizer. They’re also a great food source for birds and small animals.

You probably remember hearing locusts last summer, and nearly every summer before that; they’re part of the Southern summer soundtrack. Ken Burns brilliantly used their sound repeatedly in the background in his acclaimed “The Civil War” documentary. Those sounds, however, were made by what are known as “annual cicadas.” Those in the news last week, however, are “periodical cicadas,” one brood of them appearing every 17 years and one every 13 years, and the two are slightly different. Annual cicadas, which appear every summer in the South, usually around July and peaking in August and September, are what you remember hearing. Periodical cicadas, however, the ones “invading” this spring, appear only in cycles, usually 13 or 17 years. These two groups of periodical cicadas that will emerge from the ground at the same time this year are what all the fuss is about.

And these periodical cicadas will emerge, this spring, all at once, almost like clockwork, when the average soil temperature at a depth of 8 inches is 64°F, which usually, around here, happens in early May or late April, and when they do, they have one goal, and one goal only, and that is to reproduce, and that horrendous buzzing that they make will be louder and more unpleasant than that of our late summer cicadas, much louder. Some have likened their sound to that of buzz saws and lawn mowers, and male cicadas make this noise trying to attract females. When they do mate, the male cicadas immediately die, and the females lay eggs, sometimes as many as 600 of them, on twigs and branches, and then they die also. Their entire life cycles above ground are only about 4 to 6 weeks.

When the eggs hatch the emerging nymphs fall to earth and burrow themselves anywhere from 6 to 18 inches in the ground, and there they feed on juices from plant roots, year after year, for either 13 or 17 years, depending on which kind they are.

According to the media, here in Tennessee none of the 17-year brood is supposed to make an appearance in our state this year, and the 13-year cohort is expected only sporadically, primarily in Middle Tennessee. The only place in America where the two broods will actually overlap is central Ohio and a small part of Iowa.

But you never know. Maybe we will see the periodical cicadas here as well. I’ve read that one way to predict a cicada emergence is to watch mole activity, that the year before a brood emerges mole activity increases, and they have been tearing up my front yard going all the way back to early last fall.

Maybe the moles know more than the media does. Wouldn’t surprise me at all.

Songs with road or street names in the title

THEOREM

John Avery
Emison

I have written before about songs with girls’ names in the title, and I have written about songs with colors in the title. A couple of examples in the “girls’ names” category include the close harmony of the Everly Brothers who had huge hits Cathy’s Clown and Wake Up Little Suzy. Don Everly wrote the former and Felice and Boudleaux Bryant wrote the latter. (Later Felice and Boudleaux wrote Rocky Top). In the “color” category you have Blue Suede Shoes, which put Jackson’s own Carl Perkins on the rockabilly map, and White Christmas by Bing Crosby.

This week’s column is about songs with a road or street name in the title. Do you remember The Ballad of Thunder Road by actor Robert Mitchum? It was the theme song of the movie “Thunder Road” in which Mitchum starred as bootleg driver Lucas Doolin. He would try to outrun the federal “revenuers” and deliver illegal (untaxed) white whiskey from stills in East Tennessee. Another song from the hills of North Carolina was Tobacco Road. This was written and originally recorded by John D. Loudermilk who went by the stage name Johnny Dee while he was a performer. It was said that the song is somewhat autobiographical of Loudermilk, a native North Carolinian. He had little success with recording it, but other bands covered the song and went way up the charts. The version you likely remember was recorded in 1964 by the British band, “The Nashville Teens.” If you were a fan of the band “America” you will likely remember Ventura Highway. Incidentally “America,” just like “The Nashville Teens” was a British band trying to sound American. Penny Lane is another one you might recall. It’s from the Beatles’ album “Abbey Road.”

Bob Dylan had a big hit with the funky sounding tune Positively 4th Street. “When you ain’t got nothin’ you got nothin’ to lose.” “The Drifters” had a big hit in 1963 with On Broadway. The tune was written by the prolific songwriting team of Barry Mann and Cynthia Weil. Ms. Weil died last year. Phil Spector who died in prison three years ago played lead guitar. Gerry Rafferty, a Scott had a big hit in 1978 with Baker Street. Nat King Cole had a big hit with (Get Your Kicks on) Route 66. Paul Simon and Art Garfunkel had a hit with 59th Street Bridge Song (Feelin’ Groovy). Bill Haley and the Comets (of “see you later alligator” fame) had a hit with Paper Boy (on Main Street USA). Others that deserve mention include: Blue Avenue by Roy Orbison; Main Street by Bob Seger and the Silver Bullet Band; Moon Over Bourbon Street by Sting; and Can You Tell Me How To Get To Sesame Street?

I will close with two really weird tunes in the “street name” category. The first is Sunny Goodge Street (the “g” in Goodge is silent so it’s pronounced “good”) by the Scottish singer/songwriter Donovan. His real name is Donovan Phillips Leitch. It’s a psychedelic story about someone smoking dope and trying to break into a vending machine to get the chocolate. Judy Collins had a substantial hit with it and nobody should be surprised at that. The next one takes the cake. It is clearly the most bizarre tune in this category – maybe any category??? It is the song My Brother Was Eaten by Wolves on the Connecticut Turnpike by the band Alessa. It seems that Alessa is out of New Hampshire, somewhere. It is not easy to determine whether Alessa is a man or a woman or a multi-instrument band. Surely you will take my word on this because there is no way I would have made this up by myself. The song is an instrumental tune with a lot of synthesized music in it so it’s difficult to determine whether anyone actually lost a loved one up in New England, or it’s just a nutty title by a nutty band. It’s available on YouTube, but I don’t recommend it. I’ll see you on down the trail.

There be treasure!

KEVIN’S
CORNER

Kevin
Stone

I’m having a yard sale this weekend. I guess it’d be more accurately called an “estate sale”, since almost everything in it had belonged to my late mother-in-law and her husband, Max. When Gma passed away last December, she left behind a lot of stuff. A lot. She was an avid auction, estate and yard sale person herself. She loved a good deal. It didn’t matter if it was ceramic ducks (selling a ton of those), artwork (lots of paintings too), or Depression-Era glassware (man! There’s a whole lot of glassware in this house), she loved getting a bargain. She would go to the bargain stores in Jackson and come back with a wide variety of items. Costume jewelry (of which we will be selling most of this weekend) and fake plants (those are going in the sale) were two of her favorite things. Gma would buy crock pots (at least two of those are in the sale) even though she had enough of them. In recent years, she had slowed down on buying furniture (but we still have a lovely couch and sofa chair to sell this weekend). She had two freezers (of which we will be selling the BIG six-foot long, lay-down freezer cheap! Be sure to bring a truck. We don’t deliver.)

Her husband, Max, passed a few years ago. He was quite the collector, too. His tastes were unique, to say the least. He loved cast iron cookware (there’s a truckload of the stuff, and it’s priced to sell! Frying pans, pots, at least one cast iron tea pot, and Oh! So much more). Strangely enough, he got into collecting Collector Edition Barbie Dolls, many years before last year’s “Barbie” movie came out. He thought they might be a good investment (and so will you! Come down and check out over twenty “still in the box”, great condition Barbies from the mid to late 90’s! There’s also a bin of loose, unboxed Barbies and Kens). He loved to smoke meat, barbecue (good smoker for sale) and cook (oh, my dear Lord, we have a lot of HUGE aluminum pots, as well as baking pans, not to mention utensils, that will go for little or nearly nothing). He also loved to collect John Deere collectibles (die cast metal tractors, hats, etc. for sale - but at a limited supply). He had quite a few harmonicas, as well. (You KNOW I’m selling those! My grandkids ain’t running around my house blowing those things). Max was a trucker once upon a time, and he wasn’t a fan of getting rid of stuff. He mainly hauled mobile homes (for which he left flagging material, hard hats, truck fixtures like mirrors, 15w30 diesel oil in half a dozen jugs, a couple of briefcases, and – get this – six or seven cb radios and various antennas! They will go cheap! Also, he left some “OVERSIZE LOAD” signage that would look great on your wall, and a Motorola “belt phone” – still in a leather zippered case, from the nineties-great conversation piece) He was a regular Renaissance Man, that Max.

Way back when, Gma and Max canned their own vegetables. Tomatoes were their favorite. They shared a lot of produce with us over the years, to my ‘mater lovin’ delight. My wife, Laura Gail, and I never learned how (so now we have a HUGE quantity of mason jars, lids, canning supplies and cookery to move-fast! We’ll be packing them into plastic milk crates, which you can keep) so we really don’t need those supplies. They both worked in the yard a lot (and acquired an over-abundance of gardening tools, of which the excess will be in the sale).

They kept just about everything, being from a generation that didn’t grow up with a lot. When they got to where they could afford stuff for themselves, they held onto it, even when they had multiples of the same thing. (hand tools, old tractor wrenches, twine, plumbing and electrical parts-all MUST go!)

I’m a sentimental guy. I hold onto things for which I really have no use (exercise equipment, desks, a microwave, toys, etc will all be sold!), but they make me look like a Tibetan Monk with a vow of poverty. Still, it’s hard to have to go through our loved one’s personal treasures (so come on down this Saturday and Sunday, April 20th and 21st, from 7am to 2pm and help us find all of this stuff a brand new home!) but since we’ll be eventually moving into their house (461 state route 186 south, Humboldt, TN-look for the ESTATE SALE sign out front!) we have to make room for our own things. Like I said, it’s hard to sell other people’s treasures. But we’re going to force ourselves to. Come on down this weekend and get yourself some bargain treasures! This is an opinion column and, in my humble opinion, you can’t afford to pass up this sale. Lots of stuff inside the house, as well as outside. Come rain, or come shine, it’s gonna go down this weekend.

Disclaimer: This has been a blatant and desperate attempt to get all of you to come buy some pretty awesome stuff. Forgive me if you feel that I’m taking advantage of you by telling you about this in my column. Oh, and if you mention “Kevin’s Corner” at the yard sale I’ll be happy to sign an autograph and take a photo with you. Free of charge. I love taking selfies with folks. Or you can give me a dollar not to. Y’all come! God bless y’all!

Nellie K. Reasons 1925-2024

Nellie Katherine Reasons, 98, passed away peacefully Saturday, April 6, at Alamo Nursing & Rehabilitation Center. She was born November 17, 1925, in Dyer, to the late Dewey Bryan & Elsie Alcenia Summar Wharton. She was a longtime member of Alamo Methodist Church and sang in the choir. Music was such an important part of her life. She loved to listen to it and she loved to sing. One of her favorite songs was "Because He Lives" because bible verse John 3:16 is reflected in this song and reminds us of an everlasting life with Jesus. John 3:16 "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life". Another one of her favorite songs was "Prayer is the Key to Heaven" and she believed, as the song says, "and faith unlocks the door". She was listening to these songs as she drifted into her eternal sleep. Nellie loved to go fishing with Eules and her family and they could make an impressive catfish dinner. She loved to swing on the porch swing and watch her favorite cardinal red birds fly around. She loved her family and the laughter of her grandkids and always wanted to make sure everyone was alright. Nellie was most famous in the community for her made from scratch brownies and loved to share them with her friends and family. Nellie lived a long and wonderful blessed life and is now at peace in Heaven. We will miss her so much, but as she said, we will "See Ya" again.

She is survived by her sister, Martha Ann Wharton; daughters, Carol Green (Keith) and Kay Stout (Larry); grandchildren, Amy Hunt (Troy), Holly Rice, Bryan Campbell (Amanda), Michael Green, Brian Pease (Adrianna), and Brandy Spendlove (Shawn); and great-grandchildren, Kalyn Robbins, Anna Rice, Chase Campbell, Brayden Rice, Chanler Spendlove, Dillon Lynam, Tanner Campbell, Charlie Spendlove, Maximus Pease, Mason Hunt (aka Puddin') and Preslee Pease.

In addition to her parents she was preceded in death by her granddaughter, Melanie Kay Pease; husband of 51 years, Eules Norman Reasons; and son, Randy Bryan Reasons.

The family received visitors Saturday, April 13, at Crockett Community Church (formerly Alamo Methodist Church). The funeral followed and burial was in Oakview Memorial Park in Alamo.

In lieu of flowers, the family request that donations be made to Crockett Community Church in Alamo, or St. Jude Research Hospital. The family would like to thank Alamo Nursing and Rehab Center for the wonderful and loving care they provided to Nellie.

TRUTH IN SCRIPTURE

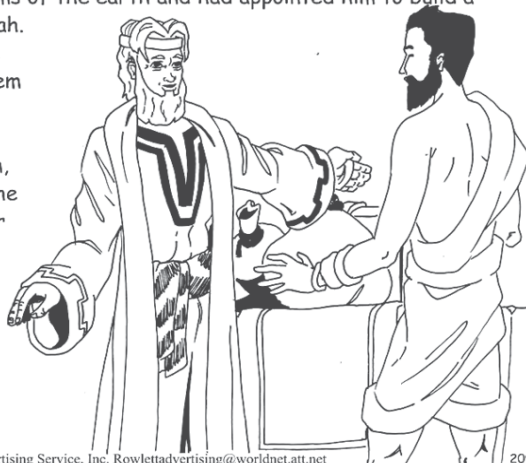

Cyrus, King of Persia
 II Chronicles 36; Ezra 1-3

In 559 B.C. Cyrus became king of Persia. In 539 B.C. his army sacked Babylon and he began the process of freeing the Jews who had been taken captive and transported there by King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon in 586 B.C.

This action was to fulfill the word of the LORD that Jeremiah the prophet had spoken. As the LORD moved his heart he made a proclamation stating that The LORD, the God of heaven, had given him all the kingdoms of the earth and had appointed him to build a temple for Him at Jerusalem in Judah.

He said that anyone of God's people among them may go back to Jerusalem and Judah and may the Lord God be with them.

Cyrus sent Zerubbabel to Jerusalem, financed his project and returned the gold and silver that Nebuchadnezzar had taken from the temple.

Boy Scouts of America partners with Nobody Trashes Tennessee

Tennessee Department of Transportation's (TDOT) Nobody Trashes Tennessee (NTT) litter prevention campaign has once again expanded its youth group partnerships. All six Boy Scouts of America councils serving Tennessee have joined with Nobody Trashes Tennessee to offer scouts the opportunity to earn a Nobody Trashes Tennessee patch.

Boy Scouts of all ages have multiple ways to earn the patch by completing Nobody Trashes Tennessee educational worksheets and participating in litter cleanups in their community, coordinating their own cleanup in their neighborhood or school grounds, or through existing beautification and service projects.

For Boy Scouts ages 12 and older, the Adopt-A-Highway program is an opportunity to earn both a patch and a roadway recognition panel for committing to quarterly pickups. Patches are provided by Nobody Trashes Tennessee and do not cost the councils or individual scouts.

"Scouts are always out serving their communities through various service projects and citizenship and community service is woven into the fabric of our programs," said Casey Norwood, Scout Executive/CEO, Boy Scouts of America, Chickasaw Council. "I believe the goals of the Nobody Trashes Tennessee campaign aligns well with our Scouts giving back to the communities in which we all love and live."

All scouts are encouraged to participate in spring and summer cleanup events in their communities, including the Great American Cleanup, which continues through June. Observances including Earth Day on April 22 offer additional opportunities for troops to join existing events or conduct their own community cleanup.

"Boy Scouts are known for their commitment to community and partnering with Nobody Trashes Tennessee underscores their dedication to instilling values of environmental stewardship, civic responsibility, and leadership in young people," said Britany Morris, transportation program supervisor, TDOT. "We are thrilled to have participation from all six councils representing the state."

The Boy Scouts join Tennessee's three Girl Scout councils, and additional youth groups in offering the NTT patch. To learn more about the program, access downloadable educational resources, and register cleanups visit:

- Sequoyah Council, Boy Scouts of America (nobodytrashestennessee.com/sebsa)

- Middle Tennessee Council, Boy Scouts of America (nobodytrashestennessee.com/mtcbsa)

- Cherokee Area Council, Boy Scouts of America (nobodytrashestennessee.com/cacbsa)

- Great Smoky Mountain Council, Boy Scouts of America (nobodytrashestennessee.com/gsmcbsa)

- Chickasaw Council, Boy Scouts of America (nobodytrashestennessee.com/ccbsa)

All residents are encouraged to show their support for a litter-free Tennessee. To find a local cleanup event, visit nobodytrashestennessee.com/events.

NURSES

ute includes the laying of a white rose on the casket or given to a family member to symbolize honor and appreciation for the deceased. A Final Role Call is performed releasing them from their duties and retiring their license number. The Nightingale Lamp is extinguished, and the Nurse's Prayer is read.

If requested by the family, casket or entryway posting of the Honor Guard can be done. These services may be held at the funeral home, church, other place of worship, or graveside. The Guard's presence helps to shine a light on the nurse's dedication and helps ease mourners' grief during this time of loss.

The members of the Honor Guard consider it both an honor and a privilege to participate in the final services for their fellow nurses.

To arrange a Nurses Honor Guard tribute for your loved one, discuss it with your funeral home director or contact WTNHG members Tammy Carter at 731-571-8451 or Rachel Schmidt at 330-635-7408.

Composed of nurses living throughout West Tennessee, WTNHG is a 501c3 non-profit organization that operates on dues and donations.
